Dear Harold:

I'm in the office this Saturday, editing the enclosed Alcock interview for Sunday special report use.

It seems to make sense. I'll be interested in your opinion.

Meanwhile..looks like its all over for the Shaw case. I wonder however if there is a sort of statute of limitations involved. Under Louisiana law (or any other for that matter) is there a cutoff date on when prosecution must occur or charges be dropped?

Thanks for all the info & calls during the Washington phase of what happened. I'm looking forward to hearing what you couldn't mention over the phone.

Regards,

Art
